DETAILED ACTION

1. The Examiner acknowledges the response of 7/3/2003.

Double Patenting

2. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 20-31 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-9 of U.S. Patent No. 6,376,046 in view of Yokosuka et al. 6,117,839.

Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to make the detergent impregnated article with abrasive particles, since the claims of '046 encompass the claimed invention in particular the cleaning article being impregnated with 50 to 5000% of detergent based on the weight of said cleaning article with no load applied, see claim 1 of '046. '046 differs because it is silent about the pencil hardness and the amount of abrasive particles used in the impregnated article. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in this art to optimize the amount of abrasive particles with the appropriate pencil hardness motivated with the expectation to improve cleaning power for the surface to be cleaned and non scratching of the surfaces to be cleaned, since it has been held that discovering the optimum value involves only routine skill in this art, In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980). Regarding the protective layer component, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to employ a protective layer component, corresponding to silicone oil (see column 9, lines 25-66) of 6,117,830. Regarding applicant's arguments about the density of the detergent gradual-releasing layers and the detergent-retaining layer since the claimed invention has little specificity as to the nature of the claimed paper or fabric one of ordinary skill in this art would be able to optimize the appropriate density, see In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 276, 205 USPQ 215, 219 (CCPA 1980).
